McCaskill Explains 'No Fault' Insurance Here

The common moral law that says "anyone who negligently injures another person's interests is responsible to that person" may go the way of the rights of kings, which were signed out of existence in the Magna Carta, according to William Y. McCaskill, Jefferson City, superintendent of insurance for Missouri.

Speaking at a Rotary Club luncheon at Bothwell Hotel Monday, McCaskill said that at present vehicular insurance is purchased by a person so that, in case of an accident in which he is "at fault," he might be able to repair damages and pay for injuries. He added that liabilities have traditionally been dealt with in this manner because of the pre-supposition of moral responsibility.

If the so called "no fault" insurance plan were to become law, McCaskill said, the policy holder would have taken the first step away from the observance of this moral law. He told Rotarians that "no fault" insurance is designed so that regardless of who is "at fault" in an accident, the insurance company of each person with damages or injuries pays only that person. He said that the insurance firm would no longer pay the claims of anyone not covered by a specific policy.

"No fault" insurance is already in effect in Massachusetts, will soon become law in Delaware and has been proposed in the legislatures of 28 other states, including Missouri, he said.

The biggest benefit of such a proposal, according to McCaskill, would be lowering premium rates. While this would not come suddenly, he said that costs would gradually lessen because companies would no longer be paying the exorbitant claims of some persons who are not really seriously injured and would be involved in fewer costly court battles.

He said some groups of persons, notably lawyers, see a problem connected with the "no fault" proposals. According to McCaskill, the legal profession is generally in favor of retaining the concept of moral responsibility as a deterrent to reckless driving.

Damage and injury claims and costly litigation are not the only reasons for high insurance rates, McCaskill told about 60 Rotary members and guests. He said that crime, the drinking driver, highway safety and automobile construction are problems that the American public will have to face if it hopes to lower insurance costs.

"More teenagers are killed each year from accidents than from all diseases combined," McCaskill said. He added impact to his statement by saying that after 6 p.m. on any given night, one out of every four drivers on the highway is either drunk or has been drinking.

The fact that insurance premiums paid by Missouri residents will help purchase

Court Focuses Attention On Times Disclosure Case

NEW YORK (AP) — With all eight judges sitting because of the "importance" of the issue, the federal appeals court here today considers the government's move to halt The New York Times' publication of classified Pentagon papers.

A judge panel from the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals extended a restraining order against The Times today to allow the full court to hear what the newspaper called "a unique case in the history of the nation." Chief Judge Henry J. Friendly said that all the members had conferred by telephone over the weekend and were "in accord in their belief that this appeal raised questions of such extraordinary importance that it should be heard by all the judges."

The Times printed three installments of a series based on the Pentagon's 47-volume study of the origins and escalation of the Vietnam war, but the series was halted a week ago by the restraining order pending the outcome of the government suit.

Last Saturday, U.S. District Court Judge Murray I. Gurfein turned down the government's request for a preliminary injunction barring The Times from publishing further articles based on the classified documents but the government appealed to the circuit judges.

Normally the appellate court here consists of nine judges, but currently there is a vacancy. Should the panel split 4-4 on a decision, Gurfein's ruling would stand and The Times would be free to resume publication, barring intervention by the Supreme Court.

In a similar case involving The Washington Post, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled Monday that the newspaper could go ahead with its series based on the same Pentagon study but the appeals court quickly ordered a stay.

The Post began publication of the study where The Times left off and was halted by a restraining order after two installments. Today the Boston Globe printed new portions of the study.

Gesell threw out the government's case against The Post last week but the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia reversed him and ordered Monday's hearing. The full nine-man court was to hear the government's appeal for an injunction today.

The Pentagon study, entitled "History of U.S. Decision-Making on Vietnam Policy," traces the nation's involvement in Indochina from the end of World War II to 1967. It was ordered by then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The Times obtained copies of both that study and another document, a summary of "The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident," and began publishing articles and excerpts Sunday June 13.

The Times said that it did so "with the conviction that it was in the interest of the people of the United States that they be informed and that it was the fundamental responsibility of the press to make such information available."

In its series, The Times said that the United States conducted clandestine warfare against North Vietnam prior to the 1964 Tonkin Gulf incident, that the Johnson administration decided to bomb North Vietnam before the 1964 presidential election and that President Johnson decided early in 1965 to use American ground troops offensively in secret.

In Medina Case

Denies Testimony Plan

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A judge advocate denied today that the Army decided not to have Capt. Ernest L. Medina testify in an earlier My Lai trial so that it could prosecute the captain.

"I don't believe there was any intentional discussion at this point," Col. Wilson Freeman testified at a pretrial hearing for Medina, charged with murdering 102 villagers at My Lai.

Defense attorneys contend that high-ranking officers agreed to forfeit a conviction in the case of assault with intent to murder six My Lai villagers.

Medina's defense attorney said that the captain was never permitted to refute this testimony.

The attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said that the Army deliberately diluted the case against Hutto in order to prosecute Medina. He contends that the Army could not have afforded to use Medina as a witness to prosecute Hutto, and then bring Medina to trial.

Two other high-ranking Army officers remained to testify at Medina's pretrial hearing. They are Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, command general at Ft. McPherson; and Col. James Mobley, the investigating officer assigned to the case.

Medina's attorneys are seeking to prove that command influence kept Medina from testifying in other My Lai trials.

Command influence refers to an effort by superior military officers, through the Army chain of command or by weight of rank, to influence the outcome of the military judicial process.

Aubrey M. Daniel III, the Army prosecutor in the case of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., testified Monday that he had received a written order forbidding him from calling Medina as a witness in the Calley trial.

Daniel said high-ranking officers decided it would be inconsistent for the Army to use Medina to convict Calley and then to prosecute Medina on similar charges. The 34-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., is charged with murdering 102 villagers at My Lai and assaulting another.

The former prosecutor testified that the order not to call Medina came from Col. Robert Lathrop, staff judge advocate at Ft. Benning, where Calley's trial was held. Calley was convicted of murdering 22 Vietnamese villagers.

Daniel said that during the Christmas recess of the Calley trial he went to the Pentagon for a meeting with 3rd Army officials as well as representatives of the judge advocate general's office.

The purpose of the meeting, Daniel said, was to discuss whether or not to call Medina as a witness.

He said no decision was made at the meeting, but that it was clear the 3rd Army representatives were against allowing Medina to testify for the government in the Calley case.

Earlier Monday, Maj. William G. Eckhardt, the prosecutor in the Medina case and one of the 3rd Army representatives at the Pentagon meeting, testified he argued against allowing Medina to testify at Calley's trial.

Eckhardt said he feared Medina might use his appearance in the Calley trial to block his own prosecution on charges of murder.

He said he thought Medina's testimony was not necessary to the Calley prosecution because even if Medina had ordered a massacre, the order would have been "patently illegal."

Sgt. Charles La Croix of Ft. Carson, Colo., a former member of Charlie Company, was the first witness Monday. He testified that high-ranking Army officers threatened to charge him with crimes at My Lai unless he turned state's evidence against Medina.

Decisive Vote Near On Minimum Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, which already has shown itself closely divided on welfare reform, moved today toward a decisive vote on a $2,400-a-year family income floor.

Supporters of the legislation, backed both by President Nixon and Democratic leaders, turned back the first challenge to the welfare plan Monday on a 200-172 procedural vote.

The margin was considered narrow because the House usually approves almost routinely its Rules Committee's recommendations on how to handle bills.

The effect of Monday's vote was to bar substitutes for or amendments to the bill, at the same time giving opponents one more chance to accept or reject it as a whole.

An administration source said he expects the plan to win by about the same margin. But the opposition, ranging from those who consider the level too low and the work requirements harsh to those disapproving in principle of guaranteed income, has been hard to measure.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., told the House a vote against the new program is a vote for "the hodgepodge mess that we have today."

"Any system that puts an incentive on a father to walk away from his children to assure them something to eat is not good public policy," said Mills, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Rep. Conyers Jr., D-Mich., told Mills the work force in Detroit now is 26 per cent unemployed and asked where the jobs required by the bill will come from.

Mills said the legislation provides for 200,000 public service jobs and additional funds for more jobs will be provided if necessary.

Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., said "This is a most dangerous road we start out on." He predicted the Senate would raise the assured income level to $3,000 or higher.

"There will be candidates for Congress, maybe residential candidates," Colmer said, "vying to see who can promise more."

Rep. H. Allen Smith, R-Calif., said Gov. Ronald Reagan asked California congressmen to vote against the plan.

The Social Security portion of the bill includes a 5 per cent benefit increase effective June 1972, future cost of living increases and liberalization of rules. But also a steep increase in payroll taxes.

More Personal Attention

A pilot study program on team nursing will be put into operation this summer at Bothwell Hospital, the board of trustees learned at its meeting Monday night.

Hospital administrator L. Don Feeback told the board that the plan would assign fewer patients to each nurse and allow nurses to spend more time in bedside patient care.

Team nursing was first scheduled to go into effect with the completion of the proposed hospital addition. However, the defeat of a bond issue at the polls last April delayed construction of the addition.

Feeback said he hoped the pilot program would lead to the adoption of team nursing on a permanent basis in the existing facility.

The board also was informed that the nationally-recognized Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation would inspect Bothwell Hospital July 12 and deliver their recommendations.

The commission is made up of representatives of the American Medical Association, the American Hospital Association and the American College of Surgeons. The group checks hospitals every two years and designates them acceptable or unacceptable. The commission also makes recommendations for improving hospital operations.

Plan Pilot Nursing Program For Bothwell Hospital

A yearly budget summary was presented to the board showing the hospital had receipts of $3,163,414.33 and disbursements of $3,054,305.75 during a 12-month period from June 1, 1970, to May 31, 1971.

A report for the month of May 1971 showed the hospital with receipts of $262,855.23 and disbursements of $299,246.10.

Feeback noted that in the past 12 months the patient load had increased by 280 over the previous year, but the average patient stayed in the hospital 6.8 days in the past year, a decrease from the average stay of 7.2 days in 1969-1970.

In other business, building committee chairman Firmin Boul told the board that the Menefee Construction Co., which had submitted a low bid of $41,547.92, had subcontracted the construction of a parking lot on 14th Street to Wolf Construction Co.

The board voted a $300 scholarship to Mrs. Patricia Jean Kempf, Southern Hills, to attend a licensed practical nurse program at State Fair Community College.

The board also voted $2,825.39 to install air conditioning in the kitchen and $1,300 to repair a boiler in the hospital.

In equipment purchases, the board voted $475 for a mechromab dual channel clot timer; $1,305 for a hemoglobinometer; $2,043 for an anesthesia machine; and $440 for a Bennett AP-4 and $200 for a spirometer, both respiratory machines.

Feeback announced plans for a hospital gift shop to be installed in the main lobby this summer, and the board approved that action.

The by-laws submitted by the newly formed hospital auxiliary were accepted by the board.

Board officers, president Fred Lange, vice-president Bill Schien, treasurer Neil Chapman and secretary Vivian Warren, were re-elected by acclamation at the meeting.

Council Faces Zoning Hassle

By KEITH A. OWEN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Two west Sedalia residents, Alvin Jording, 2018 Fairview Court, and Harvey Bohling, 1908 Fairview Court, called upon the City Council to enforce city zoning laws in a case involving a local car dealer at the council's regular meeting Monday night.

Jording addressed the council concerning the use of residential property for business purposes by Mike O'Connor Chevrolet-Buick-GMC Co. He claimed the property at Olive and Fairview, reportedly purchased by O'Connor about a year ago, is being used to park everything from "junk cars" to semi-tractor trailer units.

When called upon for an opinion, city counselor Robert Fritz cited a city ordinance which allows, at the most, the parking of passenger vehicles on such a lot. Fritz said such permission can come only from the Zoning Board of Adjustment. He added he did not know if O'Connor had requested relief from the ordinance to widen the scope for using the property.

The lot in question is presently zoned R-1 (residential), but is being used, according to Jording, for commercial purposes.

O'Connor told The Democrat-Capital Tuesday afternoon that the property in question was owned by him personally and had no connection with the car dealership. He also said two buses, which he, and not the dealership, owns were the only vehicles parked on the lot.

Jording also stated that O'Connor had ramps from the west doors of a building on Olive that extended into the street, which Mayor Jerry Jones affirmed. Jones said he had investigated that complaint.

Fourth Ward Councilman George Lockett recommended that action be taken to let a court decide the case. However, Jones said state law calls for the council to enforce city ordinances. He added that the situation would be investigated.

Earlier in the evening, Mrs. Ronald Johnson Sr., 709 North Moniteau, spoke to the council seeking an amendment to the recently-passed mobile home ordinance so that she and her husband might park a trailer home in the 200 block on East Morgan.

A lengthy discussion about the Johnsons' problem ensued and councilmen indicated they were sympathetic to the family's problem.

After recently purchasing a 12-by-70 foot mobile home, the Johnson family was refused admittance to six Sedalia trailer parks and requested official permission to place their new home in a residential area, a move which would be contrary to the city's new law. A series of legal steps were then pursued by the Johnsons in order to find a way clear of the ordinance.

Last week, the Zoning Board of Adjustment refused to make a ruling in the case after being informed by city counselor Robert Fritz that it had no power to do so.

The Johnsons were directed back to the council for a review of the situation and that review was begun Monday evening and will continue at some unannounced future date.

The racial question was again brought into the case when Lockett asked Fritz if there was any way the council could force local trailer parks to integrate.

Fritz explained that there were state and

Soviets Label Defector Unimportant Engineer

LONDON (AP) — Some British security authorities said today that Soviet defector Anatoly Fedoseyev is a comparatively unimportant electronics engineer and not the key space scientist he was reported to be.

Other sources said Fedoseyev was an important Soviet official, but the British government wanted to play down his defection to minimize its effect on relations between the major Western nations and the Soviet Union.

"Just What Goes On?" asked the Daily Express in a banner headline.

Fedoseyev defected May 27 during the Paris Air Show, where he was deputy chief of the Soviet delegation. The British government announced Sunday that he had been given permission to stay in Britain, and there were reports that he was the brains behind the Soyuz space station program and the robot moon exploration program.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail N. Smirnovsky demanded Monday night that the Foreign Office allow a member of his staff to interview Fedoseyev. This appeared to indicate that the man was more than a minor official.

The Foreign Office said it would relay the demand to Fedoseyev. But Undersecretary Sir Denis Greenhill told Smirnovsky that Fedoseyev was free to contact the embassy anytime he wanted to.

The government had the 52-year-old defector under guard somewhere in the London area and was reported still questioning him.

The Guardian newspaper said intelligence sources told it "the man was proving of positive value" and the interrogation "is far from complete."

"It was understood that unofficial approaches have been made for permission for American specialists and agents to meet him," The Guardian said.

Organizers of a scientific symposium at Cambridge University said they had no idea whether Fedoseyev's defection had caused the cancellation of an appearance by four Hungarian nuclear scientists at the symposium this week.

Three of the scientists telegraphed last Friday that they could not come because of "financial difficulties." The fourth withdrew two weeks ago, after Fedoseyev disappeared from his Paris hotel.

FTC Plans Cigarette War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission plans soon to revive its seven-year-old fight to require cigarette makers to say in advertising that smoking is harmful to health.

The expected approach this time is a complaint against manufacturers charging that failure to warn of smoking's health hazards in cigarette ads is deceptive. Warnings already are required by law on cigarette packs.

A formal announcement of the proposed complaint is expected after July 1, when a congressional ban on health warning regulation by the FTC expires.

The FTC, which has backed health warnings in cigarette advertising since the 1964 report by the U.S. Surgeon General linking cigarette smoking and lung cancer, has been frustrated at every turn by Congress.

An FTC spokesman said Monday the agency's staff has recommended a plan of attack, but wouldn't say publicly what it is. The five-man commission has not acted on the recommendation as yet, he added.

Congress has forbidden the FTC to make any industry-wide cigarette advertising rule without giving it six months notice. But the FTC is expected to try to skirt this by exercising its authority to move against false and misleading advertising, a reliable staff source said.

According to some reports, the commission staff feels that there is sufficient evidence linking smoking to lung and heart diseases that failure to disclose the link in advertising is deceptive.

Shortly after the Surgeon General's report came out in January 1964, the FTC proposed a rule that would require in both advertising and on packages the warning that "cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

But before it could go into effect, Congress passed a bill requiring the warning on packs: "Caution, cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health." At the same time, it imposed on the FTC a four-year ban against further regulation of advertising.

The regulation proceedings were revived after expiration of the four-year period, but the commission held up a final decision because Congress was then considering the legislation that banned cigarette advertising from radio and television.

In its final form, the bill banned cigarette ads from the airwaves, mildly strengthened the warning on packs and prevented for another two years any action by the FTC on health warnings in advertising.

Court Stops Post Again

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An appeals court again has stopped The Washington Post from printing further disclosure of a once-secret Pentagon study and set a hearing on the matter today before all nine judges of the court.

Hearings also were set today in New York in a related case involving the Times, which first published excerpts of the papers.

The Washington order suspended a ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge Gerhard A. Gesell that the Post could go ahead with its series. Gesell said the government had failed to prove publication would lead to a compromise of military plans or a compromise of intelligence operations.

The Post abided by the order. It was the second time the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled counter to Gesell.

Friday, after the judge denied the government's request for a ban, the appeals court ordered him to hear the merits of the case and ordered a temporary ban continued over the weekend. Judge Gesell heard testimony Monday both in open and closed court, then returned his finding that the public interest favors disclosure, not suppression.

"No one can measure the effects of even a temporary delay," he said. "Any effort to preserve the status quo under these circumstances would be contrary to the public interest."

Gesell's ruling came a few minutes before the appeals court ban on publication ran out. But some two hours later, long before the morning newspaper's first edition, the appeals court on its own volition stayed Gesell's order and restrained the Post from publishing the material until 5 p.m. today.

At the same time, a similar full bench of the U.S. Circuit Court in New York was to hear a government appeal from a similar ruling involving The New York Times.

The Pentagon study, tracing this country's involvement in the Vietnam war from the end of World War II to 1967, was ordered by then Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. It numbers 3,000 pages of analysis and 4,000 pages of supporting documents.

The Times printed three parts of its series on successive days beginning June 13, before the circuit court order halted further publication. The first Post story, covering a different period, appeared last Friday and a second on Saturday before a restraining order took effect.

"It is still uncontradicted on the record that responsible officials of the Department of Defense and the Department of State view further publication as a threat to our nation," said Justice Department attorney Kevin Maroney in arguments before Judge Gesell. He said the threat overrides the First Amendment considerations involved.

Maroney said the Post had a valid argument in protecting its sources in obtaining the study, labeled top secret. But, he added, the government has a similar obligation toward its own diplomatic sources.

"It is a hundredfold more valid for the U.S. to protect its sources in conduct of foreign affairs," Maroney said.

He pleaded that the Post should entrust its documents to the court "or at least to the government for inspection."

The newspaper's attorney, William R. Glendon, told the court:

"The largest issue in this courtroom is the right of the people to be informed, a right that has been untrammelled in 200 years of United States history."

The Post submitted a number of affidavits from its reporters, editorial writers and editors that "leaking" classified material is a common practice among government officials.

In one such affidavit, Post Executive Editor Benjamin C. Bradlee said he had read the galley proofs of former President Lyndon B. Johnson's book to be published in November.

"This manuscript contains extensive, verbatim quotations from classified documents contained in the materials involved in this case," Bradlee said.

Another Half-Cent

Living Cost Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — May's jump in living costs, biggest of the year, sliced another half a cent off every dollar.

The Nixon administration's hopes to curb inflation received a second jolt Monday when the Labor Department announced claims for unemployment insurance climbed substantially last week.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said consumer prices rose five-tenths of one per cent last month with half of the increase caused by higher prices for apparel, used cars, homes and the rising price of stamps.

It was the sharpest increase in the cost of living since a five-tenths rise last December, and even higher — six-tenths — on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The report came only hours after Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans told a labor convention, "The rate of inflation has now come within controllable boundaries and this has been achieved without a major dislocation in the nation's economy."

Speaking to the AFL-CIO Seafarers International Union, Stans said, "In the first quarter of this year the rate of inflation was down to about 3 per cent—about half the average in the first quarter of 1969."

The report said "In the three months ending in May, the consumer price index rose at an annual rate of 4.2 per cent."

The May rise pushes the index up to 120.8 of its 1967 base of 100, meaning it cost $12.08 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases four years ago.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate-House Joint Economic Committee, called the CPI rise alarming. In a statement, he said the time is long past for setting up of presidential wage-price guidelines.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien called upon President Nixon

"to convey immediately an emergency economic conference to draft a comprehensive action plan to save the American economy."

"When coupled with the 6.2 unemployment that was reported two weeks ago, it is clear the the Nixon economic game plan is a shambles," O'Brien said.

Food prices rose slightly, while prices of commodities other than food, which usually show no change in May, rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent. Charges for consumer services rose six-tenths of 1 per cent, with a fourth of the increase resulting from higher postal rates.

The total number of Americans receiving unemployment insurance the week ended June 5 was 9,947,000, up 30,900 for the week and 365,400 above a year ago, which the bureau described as substantial increases.

Report Decision Rejection

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Some residents of Springfield's black community said Monday night they rejected a decision not to prosecute a white police officer in the death of a 21-year-old black June 9.

Earlier in the day, Dee Wampler, Greene County prosecuting attorney, said he would take no action against patrolman John Barnes, who shot Michael Dunlap.

A decision resulting from a coroner's inquest was that Dunlap died of a gunshot wound inflicted after a struggle for Barnes' revolver.

After a three-hour meeting, six members of the Black Concerned Citizens Committee labeled Wampler's decision "a direct slap in the face to the black citizens of Springfield."

The committee said it "would not be responsible for any action taken" following Wampler's decision, and said it would "continue to search for justice" in the shooting.

Several leaders in the black community had called for restraint following the inquest ruling when groups of youths, predominantly white, took to the streets to protest.

Disturbances and some firebombings were reported through Sunday.

Lipoprotein Molecules Indicate Fatty Intake

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you explain to me what a lipoprotein is? My husband had a special blood test and his doctor said he had increased lipoproteins. Has this anything to do with cholesterol and what should he do about it?

Dear Reader — Lipo means fatlike. Fats don't exist in significant quantities in normal people in the blood except in combination with a protein. Fatty acids in the blood combine with glycerol to form a trifat particle called a triglyceride. Glycerol is actually an alcohol and chemically combines with three fatty acids. This is where the "tri" comes in. Words in chemistry, like medicine and most disciplines, are really definitions. The ending "ide" designates a salt — hence you have sodium chloride, ordinary table salt from hydrochloric acid and sodium. The triglyceride technically is a salt from organic fatty acids and glycerol. The fatty acids can be unsaturated (lacking in hydrogen atoms) or saturated (fully loaded with hydrogen) and they can have long carbon chains or short ones.

The triglyceride (trifat particle) combines with varying amounts of cholesterol and both are transported together in combination with a blood protein, combination being called a "lipoprotein."

A lipoprotein can be large or small, depending in part on the length of the carbon chain of the fatty acids. Some scientists think the large lipoproteins are more often associated with atherosclerosis or are more apt to "get stuck" in the walls of the arteries. So lipoproteins are classified in various ways related to their size. Women tend to have smaller lipoproteins than men and this is advanced as one reason why they have a lower rate of heart attacks before they have the change of life. They also have lower blood cholesterol levels.

The cholesterol in the bloodstream is only part of the lipoprotein. Even so, chemically extracting the cholesterol from the blood and measuring its quantity has proved to be a good index of increased risk for heart attacks.

A major portion of the cholesterol is manufactured by the liver and part of it comes from cholesterol in the diet, like lots of egg yolks. A person eating two egg yolks a day will increase the cholesterol level 15 points.

What causes the body to form too much cholesterol? There is some disagreement about this, but one factor is too many calories from too much fatty food. Large scale studies of people have proved that the blood cholesterol measurements provide about as much information as you can get from the most fancy measurements of the size of lipoproteins or triglycerides or other fractions of the fat and fatlike substances in the blood. Your husband then should restrict his fat intake, eliminate any obesity he may have and stop smoking, if he smokes. If he doesn't exercise, get started on a sensible program.

Ginger Snaps

By Ginger Moore

Having just returned from a week-long vacation with my husband and two sons, ages 2 and 4, I feel confident that I can write a book on traveling with children.

The first word of advice when considering taking a 1600 mile trip with kids is DON'T. If, after considering that possibility, you are determined to go, then let me offer a few suggestions.

In packing consider not only the clothes for the climate, but the equipment you will need while traveling in the car. Items like washcloths, paper towels and Kleenex are absolute musts along with pillows (hopefully they'll sleep now and then) and a light blanket.

In choosing toys for travel, remember that sharp edges and large heavy objects become lethal weapons in a car. Don't bother taking puzzles, the pieces invariably get lost in the shuffle and just add to the clutter of the car.

String pictures, crayons and coloring books and put-together plastic animals are great, but don't leave crayons in the back window, they melt. If your children are older there are a multitude of travel games you can interest them in but with toddlers only an occasional game of "Who can find a cow first?" will work.

Food is another way to entertain small children. Take enough food and the children can eat their way to your destination.

Crackers and cookies are fairly good (unless you make the mistake of buying a chocolate variety) but potato chips and popcorn invite a disaster.

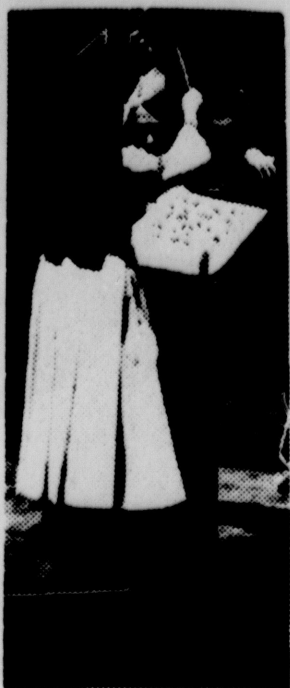

The worst thing about traveling with children is coordinating stops for gas, drinks, potty, and rest. If you've traveled the route before, you can probably coordinate some of these from the beginning, but if not, be prepared to stop every 30-60 miles for a while.

Choosing a motel for overnight stops is sometimes difficult. This is due mainly to the fear that your children might annoy visitors in the luxury motels. However, we were lucky in finding a beautiful new motel which seemed to cater to children, judging from the number lodged there the night we stayed.

Swimming will wear the kids out completely for bedtime and mom and dad should even be able to watch a little television and relax with the kiddies sleeping peacefully.

Traveling with children really isn't too bad, as long as you keep reminding yourself that these are your children and you really do love them, dearly.

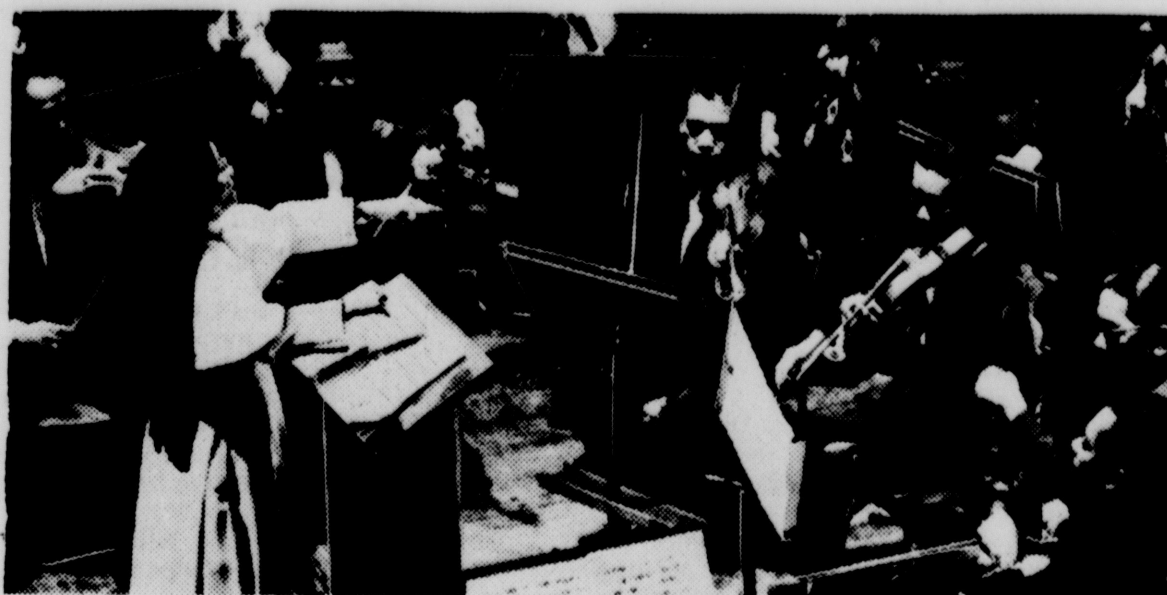

However, I will admit that if the opportunity arises again I may be tempted to send the children by plane with those marvelous hostesses and drive on by myself in peace and quiet.

Composer-Conductor

Sister Rosaline Abejo conducts the Manila Symphony Orchestra at top left. A close-up of the nun who was told by Pope John XXIII to conduct real

Nun Makes and Writes Music

By WILLIAM C. MANN

MANILA (AP) — Sister Maria Rosalina Abejo was a maker of music long before she met Pope John XXIII, but his advice led the tiny Filipina nun to the conductor's podiums of some of the world's great symphony orchestras.

Her reputation as a composer preceded her to the Vatican, so that when she met the Pope in 1962 it was no ordinary nun who kissed the papal ring.

"I told him about the two orchestras I had organized in the southern islands, and he said, 'You must conduct real symphonies. The people must know that we in the church can contribute beauty to the world outside.'"

"Since then I have made several trips abroad and have conducted in Warsaw, Prague, Moscow, London, New York, Philadelphia . . . There are so many great orchestras in the world today," sister Abejo said. She stands erect on the podium, her tiny right hand whipping the baton through the air, now coaxing, now demanding. Her white nun's habit hangs disinterestedly around her ankles, even when she twists her torso to call for a flurry of woodwinds or to tone down the brass.

"She has her own style of playing pieces, especially her own compositions," said Bernardo Manalastas, first violinist for the Manila Symphony and concert-master at her last concert.

cert. "She's very particular about the way we handle a piece."

"But even though she's particular, she adjusts to what the musicians are doing," he added. "She admits the suggestions of the musicians and allows us to decide some of the finer points of a piece; how to use our instruments best."

Sister Abejo replaces resident conductor Oscar Yateo with the Manila Symphony about twice a year. She said its musicians and those of the other orchestras she has directed cooperate with her probably more than with male conductors. "I think they respect my habit," she said.

A member of the Religious of the Virgin Mary of the Philippines, a teaching order of Filipinas, Sister Abejo is dean of the school of music at St. Mary's College in Quezon City, across Manila from the modernistic Cultural Center. Imelda R. Marcos, the First Lady of the Philippines, commissioned her to write the first oratorio in Filipino, the national language, to inaugurate the concert hall in 1969.

"When I was six I was building tunes on the piano," Sister Abejo said. "I come from a family of musicians—my father is a violinist and my mother a singer—so it came naturally. By the time I finished my second year of college, I was an advanced musician and that's when I decided to enter the convent."

So what about rock opera, hailed by New York critics as the savior of a dying art?

"I very much hope to see one," Sister Abejo said. "Probably they are for the middle generation. Now all the people who go to the opera are the old ones; maybe this new thing is to bring the younger people into Lincoln Center."

"But we've started playing classic and romantic symphonies during recess and meal time, and for many of the children it's the first time they have heard my type of music. They seem to like it."

"You have no idea how happy it makes me when one of the girls comes into our office to ask for a recording of Chopin."

Curtains Beautify Metal Trailer Door

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Stephanie could buy ornamental magnetic hooks for each side of the glass in the metal door to her trailer home. These hooks come in a variety of designs or could be painted to match the other decor. Just rest the curtain rod on the hooks, after slipping a curtain (made with a casing and extra heading on the top) over the rod. — RITA

DEAR POLLY — Stephanie could cover the door in her trailer home by painting the glass with aquarium paint which can be bought at any hobby or pet store (it comes in frosted and many colors) or she could use adhesive-backed paper which comes in frosted or stained-glass designs. Either of these should keep the sunlight off her television screen and also provide some privacy. — JOANN

DEAR POLLY — I can help Stephen as I, too, live in a house trailer. To hang curtains at my door, I used an ice pick to make small holes in the metal door at the places where the curtain would go. Place 1/2-inch metal screws (I used No. 6) in these holes at top and bottom. Make curtains wide enough for sufficient fullness and with a one-inch hem top and bottom for tension spring rods to slip through. Slip springs through hems and hook over screws. Having such a rod at the bottom will keep the curtain from flying around when the door is opened or closed.

To hang pictures, I also use these little metal screws as the plywood in the trailer is thin and does not hold nails very well. — MRS. R. T.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — A friend gave my son an expensive light gray shirt that her son had outgrown. My son loves the shirt but is pleading with me to remove the three small initials that are embroidered on it. I do not want to ruin the shirt and do not know whether I should start picking out the threads or if there is some way these letters can be covered or disguised. Please tell me what to do. — MRS. A. C. S.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the potato chip manufacturers who put more air than chips in their bags. — MRS. S. A. S.

DEAR POLLY—I have discovered a new use for nylon net. I stretch it around the sides of my bird's cage, seam together, make it lap over the top and snap. This keeps the seed hulls in the cage and not on the floor. — VIOLA

Foster Homes Are Needed For Children

Do you have enough love in your heart to share your home with a boy or girl needing a temporary home?

The Pettis County Welfare Office is looking for people who are willing to do just this. Children are referred to the Division of Welfare by the juvenile court for temporary placement in foster boarding homes when their own parents cannot care for them for one reason or another. Often, the parent is ill and unable to care for his child.

What kind of homes are they looking for? It is important that the people love children; are understanding of children who have to be away from their own parents; are patient, kind; and above all make the child feel he is wanted.

Children are placed under the supervision of the Division of Welfare. If you are interested, please call or write to the Pettis County Welfare Office, Sedalia, or call 826-0496.

Area Persons Receive American Citizenship

Eight area persons were among the 50 people representing 18 foreign countries who received their citizenship papers Thursday at swearing-in ceremonies held in the Western District Federal Court in Kansas City.

From this area were: Mrs. Emmett Fillmore, Mrs. Leon Turner, Mrs. Carl Gibbs, Miss Sylvia J. Gibbs, Mrs. Philomena Roberts, Mrs. Richard Watanabe, Mrs. Robert Treuner and Andrew Treuner.

These people were participants in weekly citizenship classes which have been conducted by the Sedalia Altrusa Club and the Osage Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. They have been studying since January.

Attending the ceremony were Mrs. Cecil Peoples, president of the Altrusa Club, Mrs. Mildred Goddard, Mrs. Dorothy Riley, Mrs. Roy Brown and Miss Opal O'Brian.

Various Kansas City organizations presented the new citizens with gifts. The Sertoma Club presented them with a parchment copy of the Declaration of Independence, the DAR gave an American Flag, and the VFW presented a copy of "My Creed." A red rose was given by the American Legion and letters from President Richard Nixon, Attorney General John Mitchell and the U.S. Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization were also distributed.

The group started at Whiteman Air Force Base by the Sedalia clubs has now organized into a Foreign Women's Association and will begin helping other women to prepare for the naturalization test. Twenty-six women are now participating in the program.

Ann Landers

Women's Lib Needs A Scientific Answer

Dear Ann Landers: The other evening a group of us were talking about Women's Lib. Someone made the point that a great many females want the same privileges that men enjoy, yet they wish to be treated like ladies. In other words, they want the best of both worlds. A physician made the point that females are biologically stronger than males and since this is a scientific fact, the social amenities should be reversed. Men should be given the seats in the bus and women should stand. They should also be given the first lifeboats, the blankets, the precious water, etc. In other words, the motto should be changed to: "Men and children first."

Are women physically stronger than men, or is this a myth? Please give us the facts, Ma'am — Novice in Nebraska.

Dear Neb: Nature has decreed that the male, generally speaking, is larger and more muscular, so in that sense he is physically stronger. BUT — women are better able to tolerate exposure to heat and cold, starvation, and shock. Women are also less susceptible to baldness, color blindness, skin cysts, stomach ulcers and heart attacks. It is a well known fact that women live longer than men.

There is a genetic rationale for these differences, according to some scientists. Females have two X chromosomes in their sex cells. Males have one X chromosome and one Y chromosome. The Y chromosome is considered inferior.

These are the scientific facts. Make of them what you will!

Dear Ann Landers: I was incensed by the man who referred to the people who write to you as "nutty creeps." At least the people who write to Ann Landers are searching for answers. They are concerned folks, willing to admit they need help.

The people who are in real trouble are the ones who don't know they need help — or are too proud to ask. I'm frank to admit that when I first started to read your column I thought it was odd that so many people would pour out their troubles to a stranger but I have come to understand that they consider you a friend — just as I do now.

Another thing. It makes me mad when people tell you to drop dead and get lost. This usually happens when you don't agree with them. I hope this doesn't hurt your feelings. Please ignore the insults, Ann, a lot of people love you and hope you continue to write for at least another 50 years. — Philadelphia Reader.

Dear Phil: Thanks for those kind words. I'll settle for 25.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a divorcee who has been going with a very attractive man for over a year. Something bothers me about him and I don't want to discuss it with anybody. Hal is very superstitious. We have had to postpone our plans for a motor trip because he refuses to be on the highway on a Friday — says it's bad luck.

I've seen Hal walk blocks out of his way to avoid a black cat. If I whistle in the house he asks me to stop. On the positive side, he is kind, considerate, dependable, extremely well thought of and he loves my two small children. He's a great company and he wants to marry me. What do you think?—M.A. R.

Q — Why is the old weatherbeaten house on the northeast corner of 16th and Lamine allowed to stand when other houses in the city in not nearly as poor condition are ordered torn down? — MRS. K. W.

A — Woodrow Garrison, city building inspector, said that houses in poor repair which might come under the provisions of the city's dangerous building ordinance are reviewed by his office in early fall of each year after the summer work load has slackened. If a house is found to be in such poor condition that it should be torn down for public safety, the owner is notified to do so. Garrison said that whenever the owner does not have the house dismantled within 20 days as provided by law, the matter is brought before the City Council. The house at this location is currently not on the list of those to be checked this fall, Garrison said, because no one has officially complained about it. Any complaint should be directed to him personally, Garrison added, preferably in writing.

Mother's Reaction To a Near Tragedy

"I thought she was dead. I thought, 'My God, what kind of a mother am I?' I'm very glad she's alive..."

This is how Mrs. Vernon D. Dotson, 2240 East 12th, felt Monday — two days after her five-year-old daughter was trapped for over an hour inside an unused icebox stored in a building on the Dotson property.

It's how any parent would feel under similar circumstances. "The door on the refrigerator was always open. We couldn't close it," Mrs. Dotson said.

But five-year-old Lisa Michele used the old icebox to make a bed for her doll. Apparently Lisa became tired of her play, crawled into the icebox to nap — and the door closed. "Her weight must have levelled it enough for the door to close," her mother said.

There is a definite lesson here. Quite often the hand of fate can accomplish what man cannot. In Lisa's case this almost ended in tragedy.

Mrs. Dotson, again remembering the incident: "There must have been some air seeping in. There had to be. When I picked her up I thought she was dead."

Lisa's mother had been at work. Her daughter disappeared from home, but no one became alarmed because Lisa quite often plays with children in the neighborhood. Finally the time lapse became too great for the child's babysitter. A search was initiated and Lisa was found. She was barely conscious.

Lisa shows signs of being "a little tired" now, but she appears to be fine. A frightened little girl, she may never play with an icebox or freezer again.

But what about other children? And parents who have not had an experience similar to Mrs. Dotson's? Will they be careful?

We hope so — for the sake of the children and parents both.

When Mrs. Dotson learned that this writer also had a freezer she said immediately: "Keep it locked. Always keep it locked."

The Dotson's unused refrigerator is now in a position where the door can't be opened — which is good. However, it is not the best safety measure available.

Police Chief William Miller urged that doors on unused refrigerators be taken off completely. Then, he said, there can be no doubt.

It's a good suggestion to remember and an even better one to put into practice. Now, before it may be too late.

How To Classify, In Eight Lessons

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — In dealing with the question of whether the New York Times was correct in printing excerpts from the top secret Pentagon report as to how we got involved in Vietnam, one must understand the entire question of classifying government documents.

Buchwald

To begin with, all branches of the government classify documents. The more classified documents a department has in its files, the more important it considers the work it is doing.

The lowest government classification for a classified document is LOU which stands for Limited Official Use. This classification could be stamped on a document to announce a softball game, an office party, the vacation schedule of department heads or what one must do in case of a nuclear bombing attack. (After the attack, report to your nearest post office and wait for instructions.) Almost anyone in the government family has access to LOUs, and you'll usually find mail-room boys reading them on elevators between deliveries of interoffice mail.

The next designation is CONFIDENTIAL which is really between LOU and SECRET. CONFIDENTIAL could have some security information in it, (for example, not only would it give the time of the softball game, but who was pitching for the other side). Fewer people are allowed to see a CONFIDENTIAL memo than a LOU. (In the case of a nuclear bombing attack, a CONFIDENTIAL memo might tell you what to do if the post office wasn't there.)

After CONFIDENTIAL comes SECRET. A SECRET document is so categorized on a N to K basis (Need to Know). Only those people who are actually involved in the project are supposed to have access to SECRET documents. They have an urgency to them that demands: "Deal with this before coffee break."

The next classification is TOP SECRET. It's hard for someone in the government to tell the difference between SECRET and TOP SECRET, other than when reading a TOP SECRET message your palms sweat more.

The final classification is LIM DIS, standing for Limited Distribution. A LIM DIS is TOP SECRET with hair on it. The highest classification known publicly is LIM DIS FEO (For Eyes Only). If you get one of those, it means you were in some way responsible for the nuclear attack. (See paragraph 3 for this article.)

Now the important thing to understand is why people in the government classify their documents. Here is a scientific breakdown of reasons and percentages. The reasons a paper is classified are:

- 1—To make the person who wrote the document look important — 10 per cent.
- 2—To make the person reading the document think he is more important than he really is — 10 per cent.
- 3—To keep secretaries and file clerks busy during slack periods — 15 per cent.
- 4—To be on record in case someone ever calls you on a mistake someone else in the department made — 10 per cent.
- 5—To make sure the press will take it seriously when the document is leaked to them — 15 per cent.
- 6—To impress the public with your frankness when you declassify it — 10 per cent.
- 7—To protect the person (or persons) who were responsible for making the mistake(s) — 25 per cent.
- 8—National security — 5 per cent.

What one must always keep in mind when dealing with something as dicey as the McNamara Pentagon report is that it may taste like national security to some people, but others say it's spinach and the heck with it.

"LOOKS LIKE THE HIGH COMMAND HAS HAD A DOPE PROBLEM ALL ALONG."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Senator Bob Dole, the GOP national chairman, has made a big noise about bringing minorities into the Republican party. But when a Chicano leader had the audacity to criticize him, Dole had the man investigated.

Now under scrutiny by the General Accounting Office is Manuel Fierro, 29, one of Dole's Kansas constituents, who has a $70,000 government contract to feed and to film the poor.

Fierro became so caught up in the spirit of his work that he held a press conference in Washington on May 21 to describe the wretched lives of his fellow Chicanos. He told of calls, letters and telegrammed appeals to Dole and other Kansas legislators for help and accused them of turning their backs on the poor.

"Why can't the officials be as concerned with us as they are with the oilmen's problem?" asked the Chicago leader plaintively.

To Dole's embarrassment, Kansas papers headlined Fierro's charges. Two days later, the powerful Senator fired off a terse letter to the General Accounting Office:

"It is of concern to me that you immediately conduct an investigation of sums provided by the Office of Economic Opportunity to the Kansas Human Needs Corporation through Mr. Manny D. Fierro."

Dole added that the grant "is being seriously questioned by many Western Kansas residents as well as myself." But both the timing and subsequent events indicate that Dole requested the investigation as sheer retaliation.

Fierro immediately sought an appointment with Dole but had to settle for Dole's administration assistant, William Kats. Fierro has given us a signed statement, which quotes Kats as telling him bluntly:

"You lay off the Senator, and we will lay off the investigation of you."

Kats categorically denied saying anything of the sort. He merely said that if Fierro would "cooperate," then Fierro could expect "cooperation" in return, Kats told us.

Both men say they can produce a witness to their version of the conversation. Fierro has also offered to take a lie detector test, but Kats has refused, calling the suggestion "ridiculous."

Footnote: Since his criticism of Dole, Fierro says he has been hounded by anonymous telephone calls and harassed by Kansas police. Deputies arrested him for fishing on private property and hauled him in for fingerprinting, a mug shot and booking. He was charged with "criminal trespassing" and driving 45 miles an hour in a 35 mile zone. An unknown assailant heaved a rock through Fierro's kitchen window and his landlord tried to evict him.

Thus, besieged by the General Accounting Office, police, courts, callers and Dole, Fierro managed a rueful smile during his talk with us. "Maybe," he said, "all this will at least let the country know what it's like to be a Chicano in Kansas."

Seldom has President Nixon been as gushy about a piece of legislation as he was when he signed the 1970 Occupational Safety and Health Act last December.

Merry-Go-Round

Dole Puts Squeeze On Chicano Leader

Before a glittering assembly of labor leaders, manufacturers, Congressmen and civil servants, the President said the bill was perhaps "the most important" to pass in two years.

For the 55 million workers who would benefit from the bill, Nixon said, it is "probably one of the most important pieces of legislation ... ever passed by Congress."

The President then walked out and promptly forgot his words. Six months have passed and virtually nothing has been done by the White House to put its provisions into action.

During this time, an estimated 900,000 workers have been disabled, 6,000 killed in industrial accidents, and 160,000 stricken with occupational diseases. Of these last, 1,700 have died.

The duty to carry out the act was given by Congress to the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare.

Labor, at least, is getting organized to carry out its assigned role.

HEW, on the other hand, has been dragging its feet. In a private letter, another of the bill's authors, Sen. Harrison "Pete" Williams, D-n.j., chided Secretary Elliott Richardson for HEW's "seeming lack of interest."

One of the key parts of the bill calls for HEW to establish a National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. "The effective date of the Act, April 28, 1971, has come and gone," wrote Williams, and HEW has done nothing.

Richardson not only attempted to downgrade the Institute by sidetracking it to Atlanta, but he also delayed five months before appointing a director. Under pressure, he also rescinded the transfer to Atlanta.

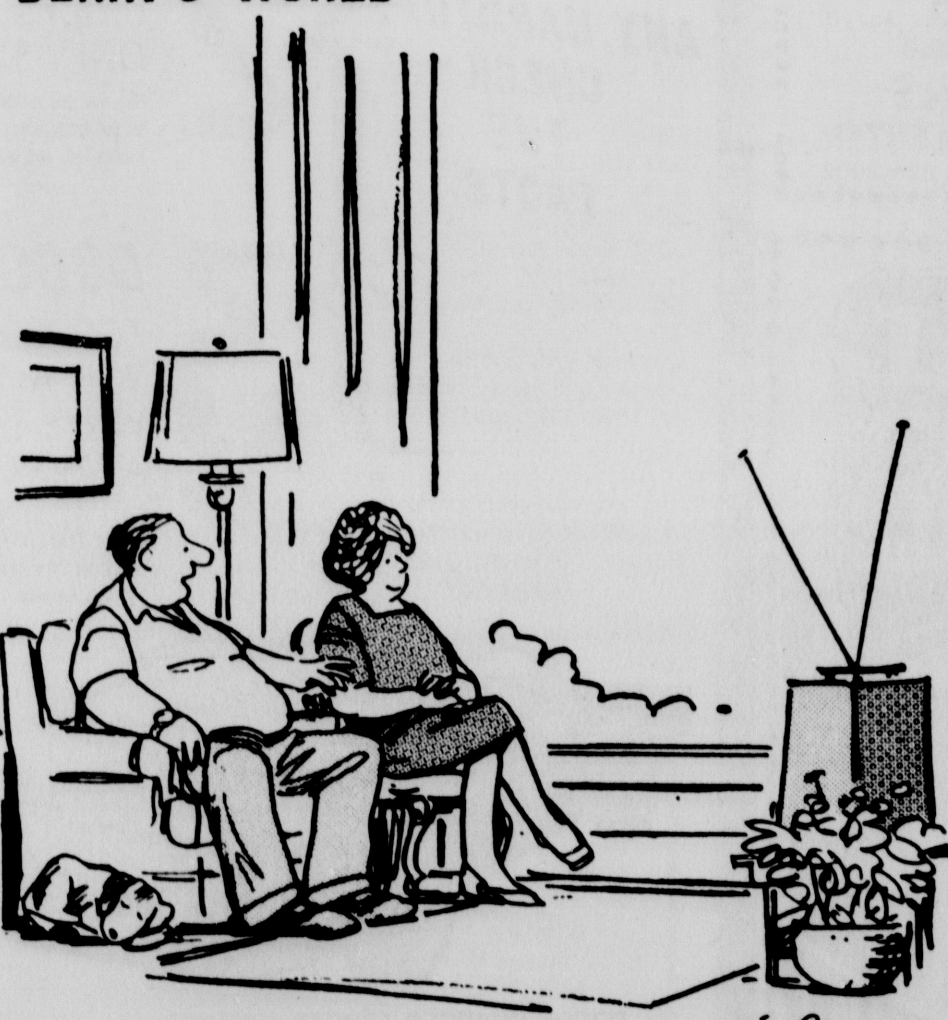

And it was not until we began probing the delays a few days ago that President Nixon, despite his passionate support for the worker safety bill in December, suddenly named the 15-man Workmen's Compensation Commission provided for in the act.

The Friends of Animals, a conservationist group, is awarding Jimmy Breslin, author of "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight," its "Rung-a-dung-dung Award for excellence in cinematic buffoonery." The Friends of Animals are outraged because a movie based on Breslin's book features a lion being put through a car wash. The irate animal lovers, according to Alice Herrington, the group's president, want to put literary lion Breslin himself through a car wash as part of the Award ceremonies.

Lockheed Pinpoints Problem

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some insiders in the Nixon administration are more troubled than they will say publicly over what the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation case tells them about the unhappy and heavy interdependence of one important group of U.S. companies and the Defense Department.

Cromley

Involved in the overall picture, though little mentioned in the public discussions, are assorted subcontracts involving many smaller firms.

For the sad thing is that the Lockheed situation is not unique. For the past 20 years of Republican and Democratic administrations, the Pentagon has been actively engaged in bailing out companies, large and small, because to let them go down the drain would have endangered the national security, national economic stability or an administration's employment policies.

These past increases in funds for companies in trouble have not attracted the wide attention of the Lockheed case. But they have, in the aggregate, cost much more in government dollars.

Sometimes the problem has been solved by "price adjustments." Sometimes advance payments have been stepped up. Sometimes additional work has been thrown the way of the company. Sometimes loans have been managed through implied government guarantees. There are a multitude of ways to supply private firms with more federal funds.

So far as can be discovered, the decisions have been made by government men, largely civilians, operating in what they believe to be public interest.

It could turn out that a government-guaranteed loan to Lockheed is essential and in the best interests of the United States. But what has developed is deeply disturbing all the same.

If this were a simple matter of corruption, it would be easily correctable. Each new administration could sweep out evil men and public prosecutors indict businessmen involved. What has happened is more worrisome.

Over the years a select group of companies has grown used to Pentagon ways. They have acquired the know-how required to deal effectively within the Pentagon maze.

From the Pentagon side, working with people you know is more comfortable. Old shoes feel better.

There is a learning curve that companies go through in meeting government specifications and in following government procurement procedures and work practices. It is a complicated jungle that many companies run from and others go broke at.

Many firms prefer to stay away from the roller-coaster ups and downs of defense business but those which are successful spend much of their effort in mastering the techniques. Often they so alter their organization and business practices that they may lose their ability to compete in the non-government world.

All of these factors tend to keep some companies regularly tied to the defense business. They also operate to discourage new entries. Gradually the field gets smaller — at least in major areas.

The process is intensified by what might be called the Pentagon speed syndrome. The Pentagon is always in a hurry. Sometimes this is because Congress has waited so long to vote appropriations that the Defense Department must run to catch up with its program.

An official in a hurry favors a man he has dealt with before because he knows what that man can do, and what he can't. A company used to dealing with a particular type of weapon or equipment often can do the job more rapidly and with fewer misunderstandings and mistakes.

Thus, the Pentagon has over the years tended to concentrate its major contracts within a fairly tight circle.

This extreme dependence of some major U.S. companies on the Pentagon and the dependence of the Pentagon on these firms is bad for national defense and the free enterprise system.

In some instances the federal government has developed what might be called kept companies, with all the inherent inefficiencies, waste and narrowness of outlook this relationship implies.

Opening lead—♥ 3

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There are all sorts of lead directing doubles. Perhaps the newest one is the Lazard double invented by Sidney Lazard of New Orleans for use against a no-trump game contract where your partner must make a blind lead. The Lazard double tells partner to open hearts.

It is new in contract, but if you were to go back to 1904 you would find this double suggested by J. B. Elwell in his book entitled "Advanced Bridge."

This book was on the game of "Bridge" and the Elwell bid called "The American Convention" disappeared when auction bridge made its debut around 1908.

Today's hand shows the Lazard double in operation. North's two-club response is Stayman and South bids two spades to show his four-card suit. North jumps to three no-trump and East doubles in spite of the fact North probably holds four hearts.

Without a heart lead, South will make at least three no-trump. The heart lead sets him two tricks.

Why did Sidney decide that the Lazard double should call for a heart lead? No particular reason. You can't have everything.

Couldn't East bid two hearts and insure a heart lead? Certainly, but if he did bid two hearts South would pass; North would double and set East two to three tricks.

Weird Royal Loss To White Sox, 5-1

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have to be one up on the league in weird games following Monday night's 5-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Twice they scored on wild pitches and once Mike Andrews came all the way from second base to score on a strikeout. In addition, they had runners thrown out at home plate twice.

Tommy John went the distance for his fourth victory against eight losses but even he was shaking his head when asked about Freddie Patek's lead-off homer which led to Kansas City's only run.

Patek, a 5-foot-4, 140-pounder, slammed John's first pitch deep down the left-field foul line. The very next pitch he put into the left-field seats for his first homer.

"I gave him a good fast ball which he hit foul," said John. "So I decided to give him a curve and he really wanged it."

That gave the Royals their only lead of the game and the Sox came back to tie it on a walk, a single and a two-out wild pitch by Jim Rooker who was tagged with his sixth loss while seeking his first victory of the season.

The strangest play of all came in the second inning. Andrews led off with a walk and took second on an infield out.

Luis Alvarado then struck out but the ball got away from catcher Jerry May. May retrieved the ball and threw Alvarado out at first but Andrews scored on the play. He was credited with a steal of third and scored on what was ruled a fielder's choice.

Chicago's daredevil tactics on the bases found Carlos May cut down at home on a perfect throw by Amos Otis in the sixth and Luis Alvarado was doubled up at home on a throw by Bob Oliver as he tried to score from third on a fly ball to right in the seventh.

The victory marked the first time since May 31 the Sox had won two in a row while Kansas City lost only for the sixth time in 21 games.

Royals Sign Brett

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals have signed an 18-year-old shortstop from El Segundo, Calif., George Brett, who was their No. 2 choice in the recent free agent draft.

Brett batted over .400 the last two years at El Segundo. He will be assigned to the Billings, Mont., rookie Pioneer League.

Cards Blanked, 4-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals seem to be the victims whenever the Los Angeles Dodgers' starting pitchers are hit by injury or illness.

It began April 15 when Don Sutton was sent to bed with the flu, and Al Downing was called on to make his National League debut. He did so by beating the Cards 2-1, hurling a complete game.

One example not enough? Then take Monday night. Bill Singler, ailing all season, suffered another pulled groin muscle and couldn't take his regular turn. So skipper Walt Alston called on untested rookie reliever Bobby O'Brien and the sub went the distance to beat the Cards 4-0 on six hits.

"I found out yesterday that I was going to start," said the 22-year-old O'Brien. "I tried to prepare myself mentally for starting but I forgot how because it's been so long since I've started."

Not on the Dodgers' spring roster, O'Brien remained with the club and appeared in nine relief appearances, achieving a 1-1 record, before hurling a shutout in his first major league chance Monday night.

"How do I feel?" he repeated a question. "Tired, really tired. I haven't pitched this much since last year at Spokane."

He was 13-3 in the Pacific Coast League a year ago but appeared actually to take command of Monday night's game in the last three innings.

"He got stronger in the late innings and his control got better," said Alston, who added, "I liked his moxie; he was tough when it counted."

The primarily left-hand hitting St. Louis lineup hit outs to the opposite field when fooled by O'Brien's speed. Catcher Tom Haller said the kid "hit the corners well. He was around the plate all night."

Only once did the Cards have a chance against the youngster.

In the sixth inning, a single by Lou Brock followed by a bloop bunt single over third baseman Richie Allen put runners at first and second with none out.

But Jim Beauchamp's liner was short-hopped by Allen, who went to Jim Lefebvre at second and on to first for a double play. Then Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter, fouled out.

Dr. Pepper Drops

Twinbill 4-2, 9-8

The Coca-Cola men's softball team of Jefferson City won a doubleheader from Sedalia Dr. Pepper Sunday night at Housel Park by scores of 4-2 and 9-8.

Jim Werneke and Dale Fangohr were the losing pitchers in the first and second games respectively for Dr. Pepper.

Scott Hudson and Wendell Brandes smacked home runs in the night's activity for Dr. Pepper in the losing cause.

Dr. Pepper will play the Booneville Red Birds Sunday night at Housel Park in a twinbill.

Fosse Takes Lead

Over Bill Freehan

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Fosse of Cleveland has caught—and passed—Bill Freehan of Detroit for catcher of the American League All-Star team.

Fosse, who had trailed from the beginning of the vote, now leads Freehan 169,743 to 157,158, according to figures released Monday by the office of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston continues as the leading vote getter, with 350,046.

Balloting by the fans ends June 30, with the game between the American and National League start set for Tuesday night, July 13, in Detroit.

Gorman Upsets Seeded Drysdale

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "You never give up at Wimbledon," said Tom Gorman, the 23-year-old Seattle, Wash., tennis star who came back from the edge of defeat to become the first hero of the 1971 All-England Championships.

Gorman told how he knocked out eighth-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa after trailing by two sets and then having a match point against him in the final set.

"I thought it was going to be a short Wimbledon for me," Gorman said. "But if you give up at Wimbledon you might as well not come here at all."

The American won 2-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

It was his second upset victory in less than a week. At the warm-up event at London's Queen's Club he defeated Australia's Rod Laver, four times Wimbledon champion.

The tournament started in cold, blustery winds and on turf left soft and treacherous by recent heavy rain.

Otherwise the first round of the men's singles produced no major upsets. Three seeded American stars—Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., and Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex.—all advanced to the second round.

Charlie Pasarell, of Santurce, P.R., knocked out Tony Roche of Australia, who reached the final in 1968 but was not seeded this time.

The squally weather threatened to blow the frills out of ladies' day today as the world's top women stars went into action.

Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long

Beach, Calif., was paired against Wendy Gilchrist of Australia at the start of her bid to win back the women's crown which she lost two years ago. The American star won Wimbledon in 1966, 1967 and 1968.

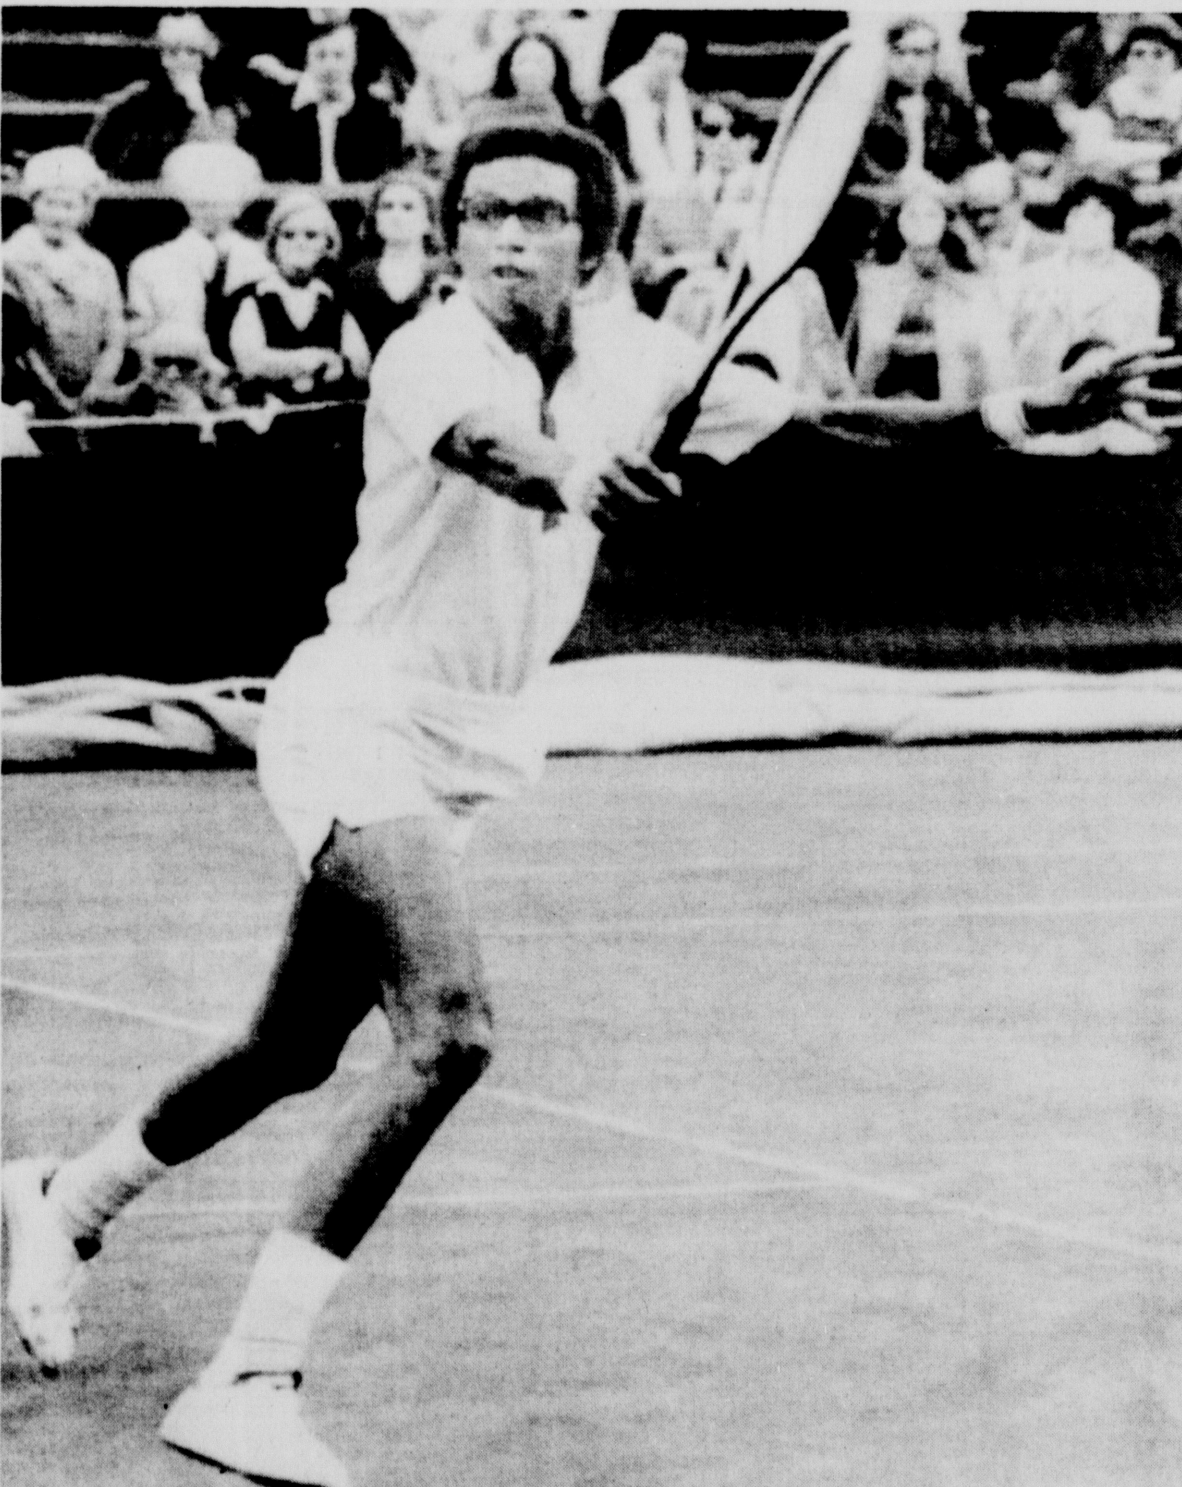

Her main rivals are likely to be the defending champion, Mrs. Margaret Court of Australia, and the 19-year-old Australian Evonne Goolagong, who won this year's French title in Paris.

Gail Hansen of Palo Alto, Calif., faced Miss Goolagong in the first round.

Conservation Group Will Meet

COLUMBIA — Citizens concerned with the future of conservation in Missouri will gather at the Holiday Inn West here Saturday at 1 p.m. for the first full meeting of the Citizens Committee for Conservation.

The group was started in May, 1970, to seek ways of financing future conservation programs. A study by three nationally known conservationists indicated that the present Department of Conservation funding base is reaching a point where progress would be impossible.

Ted Scott of Buffalo, attorney and chairman of the Citizens Committee, has invited conservationists from all over the state to the open meeting in Columbia.

The group will hear a recommendation on a course of action for increasing conservation money and will discuss a timetable for achieving it.

"I've been around the Missouri conservation program for 30 years," Scott says. "I've seen it grow and been proud of it all the way and I don't want to see it slip — ever. That's why we all have to pitch in and support this program. After all, conservation is for all of us."

The original study of the Department of Conservation was made by A. Starker Leopold, professor in the University of California's forestry school and son of Aldo Leopold, the "father of conservation" in America; Charles Callison, executive secretary of the National Audubon Society; and Irving K. Fox, professor of regional planning and associate director of the University of Wisconsin

Water Resources Center.

The Department of Conservation took the suggestions of the three-man study team and compiled an answer — in effect, a plan for the future, assuming the money to pay for it were available.

"Many of the problems identified," said the study team, "would already have been solved if more nearly adequate funding were available to the Commission."

Members of the Citizens Committee, which was formed after the study team presented its report, represent conservation groups and interested individuals from all over Missouri.

Department of Conservation funding has just about reached the limit of its potential under the present organization, but the need for new and expanded conservation programs continues to grow with population and public use.

The Department operates on permit fees and on federal tax rebates from the sale of sporting equipment. The Forestry Division receives some money from general revenue to administer the Forest Cropland program.

"Missouri's sportsmen have been the backbone of our conservation effort for more than three decades," says Carl Noren, director of the Department of Conservation. "They've paid the freight. Conservation programs are for all citizens — not just hunters and fishermen — and we feel we need a more broadly based support. Costs continue to rise and the day isn't far off when they will rise above income. "Then we will begin to slip."

Frog Season Opens June 30

JEFFERSON CITY — The bullfrog who "galumphs" after sunset of June 30 is asking for lots of trouble.

That's when the frog season opens in Missouri. Daily limit on bullfrogs is eight, with eight in possession. The season will run until Nov. 30.

Frogs are the only Missouri game which may legally be taken either by hunting or by fishing methods. Fishermen with a valid fishing permit may go after bullfrogs by hand, handnet, gig, longbow or hook and line.

Hunters with a .22 caliber rim-fire rifle or pistol or by pellet gun, longbow, hand or handnet. All froggers may use lights to help them.

Annually, some Missourians try to beat the season, but it can be an expensive procedure. Recently three conservation agents, Warren Wiedemann of Franklin County, Bill Jennings of Jefferson County and Dick Bohanan of St. Louis County arrested two men near St. Albans who had shot 17 frogs and a Canada goose.

Two pleaded guilty and it cost them $170 for the frogs and $250 for the goose — with court costs, a thumping $442.

Open Playoff to Trevino

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Lee Trevino, who until a month ago considered himself a give-up artist, won the 71st annual U.S. Open Golf Championship by beating Jack Nicklaus, the man rated as the best golfer in the world.

The 31-year-old Trevino, Mexican-American grandson of a Dallas gravedigger, bogeyed the first hole at Merion Golf Club and then went on to shoot a two-under-par 68 for a three-stroke victory over the favored Nicklaus. Nicklaus scored one-over-par 71. It was the second U.S. Open title for Trevino, who won the world's most prestigious golf title in 1968 with a record equalling 72-hole total of 275. Both he and Nicklaus shot par 280s over Merion's short but super tough course to force the 25th open playoff.

Ironically, Nicklaus lost his bid for a third Open championship on shots that had to remind every duffer who plays of his own futile game. Nicklaus left two shots in the sand and they were disastrous.

"I just made a bad swing on two, and on three I tried to get under the ball and didn't hit it hard," said a dejected Nicklaus. He took a bogey six on the second and a double bogey five on the third.

The missed sand shots gave the steady playing Trevino a two-shot lead and he never trailed. The victory was worth $30,000 to the fun-loving Trevino, who vaulted over Nicklaus ($161,213) into first place on the money winning list with $165,000.

Trevino said this second Open title was more satisfying to him, even though that initial one boosted him from relative obscurity as a pro to a golfer who had to be reckoned with. He used a comment by former golfing great Walter Hagen to make this point.

"Hagen said that anyone can win one U.S. Open, but it takes a great golfer to win two. This will give me much, much more pleasure than the first."

Trevino recalled that in the second round of the Open he birdied three of the first four holes and then bogeyed and tripled bogeyed. He said that in his old state of mind, he would have hopped a fence and taken the first bus to wherever it was going. Not the new Trevino.

"I said to myself, 'Don't get mad. You're only one over par and you can get that back and still finish high or win this tournament.' That's part of the new attitude."

Trevino headed for Cleveland where he plays in the Cleveland Open this week. He plans to play in the Canadian and British Opens and in the rest of the 1971 PGA tour. His goal he said is a new one every Thursday—win the tournament he's in.

The usual fast-talking Trevino turned conservative in his confrontation with Nicklaus. He chewed gum throughout the playoff and the talking he did was in a low tone. His game also was on the conservative side.

Nicklaus admitted he was very disappointed. "Any time you finish second, it's not too good, especially where there are only two of you playing. You're either first or last."

The 31-year-old Nicklaus—he's two months younger than Trevino—said he won't compete now until the British Open. "I'll be going over Monday," he disclosed.

Trevino announced after the playoff that he had accepted an invitation to represent the United States in the World Cup matches in Florida later this year. He will team with Nicklaus as a partner in the two-man team event that has drawn entries from 46 countries.

S-M Goes 7-0

VFW Wins 2nd in Row

V.F.W. came through with a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to win their second game in as many outings in Senior Babe Ruth action Monday night in Liberty Park Stadium. The victory, which was a 3-2 decision over Third National Bank, pulled V.F.W. into a tie for second place in the current standings.

In other action, S-M Sporting Goods had to come from behind twice in their game against Pepsi-Cola to preserve their unblemished mark in league competition at 7-0.

S-M scored twice in the bottom of the fifth inning to post a 5-4 win.

V.F.W. scored their winning run against Third National Bank as Marlin Dedrick walked to open the bottom of the final inning. Dedrick stole second base and advanced to third on a wild pitch by Mark Jones.

Terry Middleton swatted a single, only his second hit in nine trips to the plate this year, to drive in Dedrick with the winning score.

Mike Arnold was the winning pitcher for V.F.W., while Mark Jones was charged with the loss. Arnold now stands at 2-3 for the season; Jones' mark slipped to 1-1.

Pepsi-Cola forced S-M to come from behind twice as Pepsi mounted leads of 1-0 and 4-3 before S-M could gain the upper hand in the contest in the bottom of the fifth inning with a pair of runs.

With one out in S-M's half of the fifth, Doug Maple walked and later stole second base. Chuck Huddleston, the batter at the plate, struck out against pitcher Steve Eck, but Steve Holmes followed with a double over the left fielder's head that scored Maple from second.

Holmes came in with the final and winning run of the contest on a single by Bob Pledge.

Doug Maple picked up his first pitching victory of the year; came on in the second inning for Pledge, who started the contest for S-M.

Eck was the loser; his record now stands at 1-3 for the season.

Set Dates For First Annual Tennis Tourney

The First Annual Sedalia Amateur Tennis Tournament will be held July 17-18 at Liberty Park.

David Porter and Larry Whiteside, coordinators for the tourney, in announcing the meet, said that six brackets will be held in the event. Those include men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles, as well as mixed doubles and men's singles over 35-years of age.

Standard rules of tennis will apply in the meet. Single elimination brackets will be based on pro eight sets. In addition, timed bracket starts which will be announced as soon as the pairings are established, will be used, with a five-minute waiting period to show or forfeit in the meet's events.

Entry fee for the tourney will be two new tennis balls (either Wilson, Penn. or Dunlop).

Trophies, donated by S-M Sporting Goods, will be awarded July 18 to the first-place winners in each division.

To enter, contact either David Porter (827-2154) or Larry Whiteside (826-8020).

The tournament is being held for the citizens of Sedalia only and is non-profit in nature.

Entry deadline is July 12.

Entry Deadline

Coach Larry York of the Sedalia Track Club announced Monday that the entry deadline for the Optimist Relays July 3 in Kansas City is Friday.

All persons wishing to enter the meet should contact York by that date.

Blue Notches 15th Victory of Season

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Vida Blue is go for a 30-game blastoff, but he's not really counting.

The sensational Oakland left-hander won his 15th game of the season Monday night, setting down Minnesota 3-2 with a 13-strikeout performance that increased the A's American League West lead to eight games over second place Kansas City. The Royals lost 5-1 to Chicago.

Elsewhere in the AL Monday night, Baltimore ripped Washington 7-2 and Milwaukee nipped California 3-2 in 10 innings. Boston and Cleveland were rained out and the other teams were not scheduled.

Blue's workmanlike job on the Twins moved him halfway to 30 victories, a fact that doesn't impress the cool youngster.

"At the end of the season," he said, "we'll see what I've got. Whatever it is, I'll be satisfied."

What Blue's got right now is a major league leading 146 strikeouts, 15 complete games in 19 starts and a 15-2 record. He allowed just seven hits against Minnesota, but only one after the fifth inning.

The Twins nipped Oakland's ace for three hits and both their runs in the third inning, giving rookie Ray Corbin a 2-1 lead. The A's tied it on Mike Epstein's double and singles by Sal Bando and Dave Duncan in the sixth and then scored the deciding run in the seventh when Minnesota catcher

Blue Records 15th

George Mitterwald threw wild on a delayed double steal.

The last man to win 30 games was Denny McLain in 1968 and the controversial right-hander could reach 30 again this season, but on the wrong side of the ledger.

Washington's McLain lost his eighth straight and 13th in 17 decisions as Baltimore belted him for 16 hits and whacked the Senators.

Boog Powell, who was batting .178 before the game, cracked three singles and a double and drove in three runs for the Orioles. Paul Blair also had four hits and drove in one run and Frank Robinson knocked in three with two hits for the Birds, who lead the AL East by 5½ games over idle Detroit.

Roberto Pena tied the game with a ninth inning single and then drove in Milwaukee's winning run in the 10th with another hit as the Brewers topped California.

Milwaukee, held to a scratch single for eight innings by Rudy May, rallied to tie the game in the ninth on singles by Tommy Harper and Pena sandwiched around Gus Gil's sacrifice. After California reliever Dave Laroché walked the bases loaded in the 10th, Pena drilled his game winning single.

Four-Event Card Scheduled Tonight

Professional wrestling is on tap in Sedalia tonight with a four-event program scheduled at Convention Hall beginning at 8:30 p.m. Both heavyweights and girl wrestlers will be in action.

Heading the program will be a clash for the Central States championship. Risking that title belt will be husky Harley Race. He'll be challenged by black heavyweight Rufus Jones. They'll meet over the best-of-three falls.

The semifinal will match Bob Orton against the Stomper. The two were on opposite sides in tag team action last week, with a Stomper-Jones unit defeating Orton and Buddy Austin.

The female side of tonight's card will pit Betty Niccoli and Kay Noble, both veteran midlands campaigners.

Making his area debut in the opening event will be Mexico's versatile Miguel. He'll oppose crafty Tor Kamata.

Bucs Sink Mets

Stargell Uncorks 25th Home Run

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Willie Stargell isn't one to put a face before a figure—at least not on a baseball scoreboard.

Stargell, pleased with the new likeness of him which appears on the electronic scoreboard at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, socked his 25th home run of the season Monday night as the Pirates widened their National League East Division lead by whipping the second-place New York Mets 6-0.

Stargell's statistics continue to mount. He leads the majors in homers and runs batted in, with 67, and is hitting a solid .311.

In other NL games, rookie Bobby O'Brien outpitched returning veteran Bob Gibson as Los Angeles trimmed St. Louis 4-0; Philadelphia topped Cincinnati 5-3 in 12 innings and Atlanta split a double-header with Montreal, winning 6-4 before a 5-3 loss.

After the twin bill, the Braves released 47-year-old reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, the all-time leader in pitching appearances with 1,045 in 20 major league seasons.

Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis stymied the Mets on eight scattered hits to reel off his ninth straight victory and become the National League's biggest winner with an 11-3 mark.

The Pirates led 3-0 in the fifth inning when Stargell unloaded against left-hander Jerry Koosman, the Mets' starter.

Pittsburgh's Bob Robertson set a major league record for first baseman with eight assists.

Willie Montanez' two-run triple in the 12th carried the Phillies past the Reds, handing winless Jim Merritt his ninth setback of the season.

Pete Rose homered for the Reds, who led 3-0 before five consecutive Philadelphia singles produced three runs in the eighth.

Hank Aaron belted his 20th home run and Mike Lum, Hal King and Darrell Evans also homered in an eighth inning barrage that brought Atlanta from behind in its opener against the Expos.

Montreal fought back to gain a split when Ron Hunt doubled home the last two of three eighth inning runs.

The Braves announced they had given Wilhelm his unconditional release, recalled two young players from their Richmond farm club and traded utility infielder Marv Stahley to Hawaii for two minor leaguers.

Wilhelm, on the disabled list most of this season with a sore arm, had no record in three relief appearances.

Boston Globe Prints Reports

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe printed today what it said were excerpts from a Pentagon study on the Vietnam war. It includes a report on a high-level meeting at which a top U.S. officer demanded that commanders be given the freedom to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

The report, taken from the 47-volume Pentagon study of the war, said that at a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Honolulu in June 1964, Adm. Harry D. Felt, then commander of the Pacific forces, demanded the option to use nuclear weapons "as had been assumed under various plans."

There was no mention of the "various plans."

The Globe is the third U.S. newspaper to publish excerpts from the massive Pentagon study detailing American involvement in Vietnam.

Also present at the JCS Honolulu meeting were Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara; Secretary of State Dean Rusk; Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, and John McCone, director of the Central Intelligence agency.

The discussion about the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam arose, the Globe said, on the question of whether the Chinese Communist forces would enter the war.

"Secretary McNamara then went on to say that the possibility of major ground action also led to a serious question of having to use nuclear weapons at some point," the Globe quotes the report.

"Admiral Felt responded emphatically that there was no possible way to hold off the Communists on the ground without the use of tactical nuclear weapons and that it was essential that the commanders be given the freedom to use these as had been assumed under various plans," the report said.

The Globe said discussions included the "desirability of obtaining a congressional resolution prior to wide U.S. action."

"Lodge felt it would not be necessary. But Defense Secretary McNamara, Rusk and CIA director McCone all argued in favor of the resolution," the Globe said.

Other excerpts in the Globe include a report on the 1968 Tet

Offensive by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler; an early Vietnamization plan by President Johnson as a result of that offensive; and three cables from Gen. Taylor to President Kennedy in which the general recommended the deployment of 8,000 ground combat troops to Vietnam.

The Globe said it was making public for the first time "the role of the Kennedy administration in the escalation of the war."

Loyal Rebekah Lodge No. 260, will hold regular meeting on Thursday, June 24, at 8 p.m. at the IOOF Hall, 901 East 13th. Social and formal session for initiation. All members please be present. Visitors welcome.

Order Donaldson Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has ordered a grand jury-type investigation in the case of Brig. Gen. John W. Donaldson, accused of slaying six Vietnamese civilians, to determine if there is sufficient evidence for a court-martial.

Specification of charges will be read to Donaldson in a closed hearing Thursday at Ft. Meade, Md., the Army said Monday.

Donaldson is the highest-ranking officer to be accused of murdering civilians in the Indochina war and the first U.S. general in 70 years to be charged with a war crime.

Helicopter pilots allege he shot the civilians on the ground in Quang Ngai Province while flying over them in a helicopter between November 1968 and January 1969 while he commanded the Americal Division's 11th Infantry Brigade.

The 47-year-old West Point graduate, until recently a top planner for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also is charged with assaulting another Vietnamese civilian.

In announcing the Article 32 hearing, the military's equivalent of a grand jury investigation, the Army said a second assault charge had been dismissed by Lt. Gen. Claire Hutchin who "determined upon evaluating the evidence that no further proceedings on this specification were warranted."

Hutchin ordered an Article 32 investigation also for Lt. Col. William J. McCloskey, 39, Wilkes Barre, Pa., who is charged with murdering two Vietnamese civilians in March 1969. The Army has said the two cases are not related. McCloskey was Donaldson's operations officer in Vietnam.

No hearing date has been set for McCloskey.

The hearings will give both officers the first chance to tell their side of the story. So far, all the evidence has come from Army detectives investigating the pilots' allegations.

Between 80 and 90 witnesses are expected to be called to testify in Donaldson's case, military sources said.

Donaldson's civilian attorney, Benjamin Dorsey of Washington, D.C., said he will ask the chief investigating officer to give him all the Army's evidence as well as a continuance before trial. "I've got to have time to prepare my case," Dorsey said.
